Manual Vespa, in 1948. Company head, Enrico Piaggio, commissioned the design of a simple vehicle that could be piloted by a man or woman and had room to carry a passenger. The Vespa even had mudguards that would prevent clothes from getting dirty during the ride. The company has released many ranges and models of scooter since this time, but they retain the ease of use, practicality, and convenience of the first models. What models of Piaggio scooter ...
