How can classroom teachers effectively differentiate learning and teaching programs to provide for the needs of every Page 47/63 student in their class? This best-selling text begins by asking "Why include all and students?" in regular classrooms and then shows how this can be done. It outlines the philosophy of inclusive education and focuses on the use of individualised planning and effective teaching practices to Page 48/63 maximise learning outcomes within positive and productives Board environments. Vignettes and narratives provide reallife examples that help put the theory in context. This fifth edition includes broader coverage of issues to do with diversity and Page 49/63 individual differences. particularly cultural and multicultural inclusion, linguistic diversity and giftedness. There is more throughout on the universal design for learning framework and on partnerships with families, while new pedagogical features encourage readers to Page 50/63 reflect. Throughout, it emphasises a practical, research-based approach to teaching that can be applied to support students with a range of differences and additional needs.

MATHS SKILLS FOR LIVING and MATHS SKILLS FOR WORKING are Page 51/63

photocopiable teacher resource books designed to help develop essential numeracy skills in students with special learning needs. Both books are intended for students aged 14 to 16, an age when such students may soon be entering the workforce and may also be living independently. The main purpose of the units is to develop essential numeracy skills, but students will also acquire a better understanding and knowledge of practical living and working skills, such as planning household tasks, nutrition, conversation skills. body language, assertive behaviour. personal safety, days and dates, budgeting and arranging social events. MATHS SKILLS FOR LIVING and MATHS SKILLS FOR WORKING can be used as a stand alone resource for individual students or small groups with special needs as units of work for whole Page 54/63 class activities They are particularly valuable resources for Life Skills Maths courses but are equally valuable for many students in mainstream Maths classes.
