The Real Modern challenges Eurocentric and nativist perspectives on the derivative particularity of non-Western literatures, opens global modernist studies to the similarities and differences of the colonial Korean case, and argues for decolonization of the ways in which non-Western literatures are read in both local and global contexts.

The Real Modern: Literary Modernism and the Crisis of ...

A re-reading of modernist fiction within the imperial context, it sheds new light on the relationship between political discourse and aesthetics. The Real Modern examines three Korean authors of the 1930s -- Pak T'aewon, Kim Yujong, and Yi T'aejun -- whose works critique competing modes of literary representation in the period of Japanese colonial rule.

The Real Modern – Literary Modernism and the Crisis of ...

Literary modernism, or modernist literature, has its origins in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, mainly in Europe and North America, and is characterized by a self-conscious break with traditional ways of writing, in both poetry and prose fiction. Modernists experimented with literary form and expression, as exemplified by Ezra Pound's maxim to "Make it new." This literary movement was driven by a conscious desire to overturn traditional modes of representation and express the new sensibi

Most of the characters were based on real people whom Masters knew in Lewistown, Illinois, where he grew up. Not surprisingly, the locals banned the book when Masters published it, unhappy with Spoon River's cynical picture of people they recognized, not to mention its jaundiced view of life in small towns. In our day, however, according to an article in Humanities magazine, Lewistown celebrates the work penned by their famous resident.
